Some police vehicles aren't cars at all. Many officers use motorcycles, and several departments make use of much larger vehicles for a variety of purposes. Special weapons and tactics teams often travel in vans, or a van might be used simply to transport the team's extensive equipment (if the team members arrive at the scene individually). Larger departments may even utilize armored vehicles ...

This is largely because automatic cars shift gears depending on what it thinks is appropriate for the road and speed. On the flip-side, having more nuanced control of a manual car means you can better adapt to the road. While this might have been true in the past, automatic transmission technology has come a long way.
